Faculty

John J. Cronan, III
Attorney - PretiFlaherty
Mr. Cronan is a partner in the firm's Litigation, Construction, and Workers' Compensation Practice Groups. In his practice, he focuses on regional and national matters, including commercial litigation. Mr. Cronan counsels construction clients with contract issues and resolving disputes involving public and private construction projects. In this capacity, he has represented owners, general contractors, specialty contractors, and subcontractors. In addition, he regularly counsels clients navigating costly workers' compensation claims, insurance issues, or creditor's rights disputes. Mr. Cronan represents national insurance companies and group self-insurers before state courts, regulatory agencies, and mediators, and he has argued before the Maine Law Court. In addition to his focus on workers' compensation, his work includes defense of insurance claims. As an experienced trial attorney, he understands that being court-ready means having the right information and resources to dismantle the opposition as quickly and thoroughly as possible. Mr. Cronan enjoys the investigation, research, and preparation that help him win in court, and secure favorable pre-trial settlements for his clients. Before joining the firm, he served as a law clerk within the Civil Litigation Department of a law firm in Boston and as an intern with the Worcester County District Attorney's Office in Worcester, Massachusetts. While in law school, he served as associate editor and executive technical editor of the New England Journal on Criminal and Civil Confinement.

Patrick C. Brady
Attorney, Bergen Parkinson
Mr. Brady is a seasoned attorney with a focus on business, construction and real estate law. Based in Kennebunk, Maine, he brings a wealth of experience and a distinguished track record of success to his practice at Bergen Parkinson. Mr. Brady is known for his ability to provide practical and strategic guidance to clients across a broad spectrum of legal matters. As an attorney with a particular passion for the construction industry, he is a formidable advocate for a variety of clients involved in the construction industry. Mr. Brady routinely represents owners, general contractors, subcontractors and suppliers with contract drafting and negotiation, mechanic's liens, construction defects, dispute resolution, and compliance with state and federal regulations. His comprehensive but practical, pragmatic approach enables clients to navigate the legal complexities inherent in construction projects with confidence, clarity and efficiency. In addition, he maintains a robust general business and real estate law practice where he advises clients on entity formation, contract negotiation, corporate governance, financing, and residential and commercial real estate transactions. Mr. Brady honed his skills at a prominent Portland law firm and also served as in-house counsel for a large national general contractor prior to joining Bergen Parkinson.
